

Delivering to the west – multi topic field days at McKinlay, Boulia and Bedourie

Are you a producer with questions about key policy issues like industrial relations, rural land valuations or challenges facing the beef industry?

AgForce staff are delivering multi topic field days in the west to provide a critical snapshot of present issues facing primary industries and to offer assistance to boost beef and sheep enterprises in the west. Representatives from the regions' Natural Resource Management (NRM) groups will canvass natural resource issues.

Topics include:

Policy: AgForce chief executive officer Robert Walker will discuss AgForce's direction on key issues such as land valuations, mining, Wild Rivers, leasehold land and more.

Beef business: AgForce cattle board councillor Rick Britton (pictured) will canvass the latest local and state-wide issues affecting the beef industry at Boulia and Bedourie; AgForce cattle board councillor Peter Hall will address the McKinlay field day.

Pests: AgForce sheep and wool policy director Jo Hall will share all the news on sheep, plus progress on pests wild dogs and kangaroos.

Industrial relations: AgForce's industrial relations consultant Warren Turner will address changes to the Industrial Relations system and its impact on pastoral employers.

Services: AgForce Projects manager Sue Dillon will outline free services AgForce's project division delivers to all Queensland producers such as leasehold land renewal assistance, vegetation management, property planning and more.

Technology: AgForce Projects GIS technical officer Noel Brinsmead will showcase a great range of mapping products and unveil SPOTMaps 2.5 metre satellite imagery now available for producers in western Queensland to purchase.

Paddock demonstrations: Observant national sales manager Phil Whitten will demonstrate remote management solutions that deliver measurable cost reductions, production efficiency, and improved operational safety to Queensland properties.

Where and when:

Walkabout Hotel, McKinlay – Tuesday, 24 August
Goodwood Station, Boulia – Wednesday, 25 August
Monkira Station, Bedourie – Thursday, 26 August

All field days run from 9am-1pm.
Morning tea and lunch are provided.

Want to register?

Please register in advance with AgForce Projects training co-ordinator Bree Hough by calling (07) 3238 6039 or emailing houghb@agforward.org.au

Field days are free of charge and open to all producers.